NORTHWEST CANCER SPECIALISTS NAMES
DR. PAUL TSENG CHIEF MEDICAL OFFICER

PORTLAND, Ore., Nov. 15, 2010 – This month, Northwest Cancer Specialists (NCS) executive committee named Dr. Paul Tseng Chief Medical Officer. Dr. Tseng, board certified gynecologic oncologist and pelvic surgeon, has been treating patients at the Rose Quarter Cancer Center for 13 years. As CMO, Dr. Tseng will continue his patient care responsibilities, in addition to leading the Quality Assurance Committee and strengthening relationships within NCS and throughout the community.

“Paul has shown a keen aptitude for not only gynecologic surgery but also the operational and quality dimensions of medical practice. NCS is fortunate to have him take on CMO duties in addition to maintaining his busy medical practice” said Dr. Gregory Patton, NCS former CMO and current practice president.

“I dream of every NCS team member aligned with a single, patient-centric vision; a combination of unity, foresight and excellent patient care.” said Dr. Tseng, Chief Medical Officer of NCS.

Paul Tseng, MD, earned his medical degree from the University of Maryland Medical School, Baltimore, MD. He completed his residency at the Union Memorial Hospital, Baltimore, MD and his fellowship in Gynecologic Oncology at Yale University. He also served in the Indian Health Service.
